To Whom It May Concern:

Salutations. My Name Is Martine Silva, I'm a 36 years old aspiring Pharmacy Technician student enrolled at Northwest Career College in Las Vegas, NV. I have a thirst for knowledge and a genuine zeal for life. Although I have many charming qualities, I am also an imperfect being. I have many accomplishments I'm proud of, and a few, one in particular, that I am truly ashamed of.

During the end of 2013, and the beginning of 2014, I was homeless in California. It was all a very new experience to me, and it was quite a transition period. Right after the new year came around, things had begun to turn a bit more grim. The women's shelters were at max capacity, and the salvation army can only provide so much when it comes to hygiene products. Then comes January 14, 2014. A night that forever has changed the course of life for me. As previously mentioned, hygiene is a difficult thing to maintain as a female when homeless. And on the evening of January 14th, I was in a dire need and was walking, trying to figure out how I was going to handle my needs for the night. And then I stumbled upon a Walmart receipt. It was a cash receipt for $55.73. And I was faced with a decision. And I Made The Wrong Choice!

I walked the block and a half to Walmart, picked the mens grooming tool off of the shelf; and then proceeded to the other hygiene aisles, selecting bulk amounts of necessities, and approached the customer service counter. I asked if I may exchange the men's groomer for the hygiene products that I carried in my left arm. The cashier obliged, smiled, and my transaction was complete. Consequently, so was the rest of my future. You see, the security had seen me picking up the mens groomer, and after my transaction, I was charged with commercial burglary. Extreme Charges right? The reasoning behind it being a "burglary" charge was the receipt. Having the receipt showed an intent, and intent is different than a spur of the moment situation.

With a solemn and very heavy heart, I was arrested, charged, and taken to jail. I was sentenced to 24 days, 3 years of informal probation, and a $540 restitution fine. I completed my sentence, paid my fine, and completed my probation. I have NOT been in any trouble since then. I have moved to Las Vegas, and have been trying to make the absolute most and best of my life. I will admit, this charge has haunted me, and I am accountable for my poor decision making. I am also accountable for my tenacity of wanting to further my education and wanting to better my life. I have no choice but to take the good with the bad; so I have learned from my bad, and have changed my life, for the good!

During my time as a Pharmacy Technician student at Northwest, I have worked extremely hard to stay focused and take advantage of every opportunity I can to become the best professional I know that I can be. I have given it my all and am proud to say that I am currently a 4.0 GPA Student, have been named a Teacher's Assistant, and will be joining the National Technical Honor Society upon graduation. I am currently studying for my national PTCB Certification Exam and will be testing on January 23, 2020. I am eager to prove that I want to be an amazing Pharmacy Technician for patients and the community and that I have truly made a change in my life.

Please do not hesitate to contact me with any additional questions. I appreciate your consideration and hope to become a member of the Pharmacy Technician professional community upon graduation. Thank you for the opportunity.

Sincerely,

Martine Silva

CAREER COLLEGE

December 4th, 2019

To Whom It May Concern,

My name is Stephanie Nally and I am Ms. Martine Silva's Career Services Advisor at Northwest Career College. I have been working with Ms. Silva since November 2019 and in my short time of knowing her have quickly realized that she is an excellent student who wants nothing more than to become a successful Pharmacy Technician.

Ms. Silva and I are currently working together in preparation for her 240-Hour Pharmacy Technician Externship class. I have come to know Ms. Silva to be an exceptionally professional, passionate, hard-working, and kind person who is highly motivated to succeed. In speaking with her instructors, they have also seen excellence in her in the classroom. She is a distinguished student and a role model to her peers in her classes term after term. Ms. Silva currently has a 4.0 GPA and she has been appointed a Teacher's Assistant for the Pharmacy Technician program. Additionally, she will be joining the National Technical Honor Society upon graduating from the program. I am confident that Ms. Silva will be a positive asset to the profession and will show a great deal of potential for growth and leadership.

Thank you for considering my student in your process. I am confident in her ability to become an exceptional Pharmacy Technician who will contribute nothing but talent, professionalism, and true passion to the field.

Please do not hesitate to contact me with any additional questions or further information.

A Summary of Your Rights Under the Fair Credit Reporting Act

The federal Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) promotes the accuracy, fairness, and privacy of information in the files of consumer reporting agencies. There are many types of consumer reporting agencies, including credit bureaus and specialty agencies (such as agencies that sell information about check writing histories, medical records, and rental history records). Here is a summary of your major rights under the FCRA. For more information, including information about additional rights, go to www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore or write to: Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, 1700 G Street N.W., Washington, DC 20006.

You must be told if information in your file has been used against you. Anyone who uses a credit report or another type of consumer report to deny your application for credit, insurance, or employment - or to take another adverse action against you - must tell you, and must give you the name, address, and phone number of the agency that provided the information.

You have the right to know what is in your file. You may request and obtain all the information about you in the files of a consumer reporting agency (your "file disclosure"). You will be required to provide proper identification, which may include your Social Security number. In many cases, the disclosure will be free. You are entitled to a free file disclosure if:

- a person has taken adverse action against you because of information in your credit report;
- you are the victim of identity theft and place a fraud alert in your file;
- your file contains inaccurate information as a result of fraud;
- you are on public assistance;
- you are unemployed but expect to apply for employment within 60 days.

In addition, all consumers will be entitled to one free disclosure every 12 months upon request from each nationwide credit bureau and from nationwide specialty consumer reporting agencies. See www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore for additional information.

- You have the right to ask for a credit score. Credit scores are numerical summaries of your credit-worthiness based on information from credit bureaus. You may request a credit score from consumer reporting agencies that create scores or distribute scores used in residential real property loans, but you will have to pay for it. In some mortgage transactions, you will receive credit score information for free from the mortgage lender.
- You have the right to dispute incomplete or inaccurate information. If you identify information in your file that is incomplete or inaccurate, and report it to the consumer reporting agency, the agency must investigate unless your dispute is frivolous. See www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore for an explanation of dispute procedures.
- Consumer reporting agencies must correct or delete inaccurate, incomplete, or unverifiable information. Inaccurate, incomplete or unverifiable information must be removed or corrected, usually within 30 days. However, a consumer reporting agency may continue to report information it has verified as accurate.
- Consumer reporting agencies may not report outdated negative information. In most cases, a consumer reporting agency may not report negative information that is more than seven years old, or bankruptcies that are more than 10 years old.
- Access to your file is limited. A consumer reporting agency may provide information about you only to people with a valid need - usually to consider an application with a creditor, insurer, employer, landlord, or other business. The FCRA specifies those with a valid need for access.
- You must give your consent for reports to be provided to employers. A consumer reporting agency may not give out information about you to your employer, or a potential employer, without your written consent given to the employer. Written consent generally is not required in the trucking industry. For more information, go to www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore.
- You may limit "prescreened" offers of credit and insurance you get based on information in your credit report. Unsolicited "prescreened" offers for credit and insurance must include a toll-free phone number you can call if you choose to remove your name and address from the lists these offers are based on. You may opt-out with the nationwide credit bureaus at 1-888-567-8888.
- You may seek damages from violators. If a consumer reporting agency, or, in some cases, a user of consumer reports or a furnisher of information to a consumer reporting agency violates the FCRA, you may be able to sue in state or federal court.

Identify theft victims and active duty military personnel have additional rights. For more information, visit www.consumerfinance.gov/learnmore.

States may enforce the FCRA, and many states have their own consumer reporting laws. In some cases, you may have more rights under state law. For more information, contact your state or local consumer protection agency or your state Attorney General. For information about your federal rights, contact:
